Dear Sirs,
Thank you for this opportunity to comment.

I find the current proposed settlement to be nothing but an ineffectual slap on the wrist for Microsoft. I think Judge Penfield should have split the company into two. Operating System and Applications. Seemed very fair to me.

Since the above is now unlikely to happen, there needs to be harsher restrictions in the new proposed settlement. To be brief:

Most important:
Removal of Internet Explorer and $$$compensation to Sun Microsystems.
Removal Of Media Player and $$$compensation to Real Networks
....and the list goes on.

Next:
Open up full documentation of ALL Microsofts API's to Software Developers.
I'm so tired of Microsoft shutting down my software with each new Service Pack or Revision.

Thank you.
